The building referred to had been condemned as unsafe and dangerous by Chief M'Fadden, of the fire department, but it was not taken down. —The criminal court was in session yesterday, and the docket was cleaned up. Five persons were released from jail on bonds and otherwise. —The Sunday-school teachers' institute held their first meeting last evening, at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Court street. The audience, though not as large as was expected, was very much interested in the able addresses which were delivered by Rev. Guilford Jones, of the Methodist church, on the subject, "Relation of the Sunday-School to the Family," and by Rev. H. A. Jones, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, on "Sacred Geography Illustrated by Blackboard Maps, etc." The institute hold another meeting to-night at the same place. An address will be delivered by L. H. Estes, Esq., on "The Duty of all Church Members to Engage in Sunday-School Work," and by W. J. Brecknell, Esq., on "Object Teaching and Blackboard Exercises." So well pleased were those present last evening with the new and interesting features of this intellectual and instructive entertainment, there will doubtless be a full house to-night. It is entirely free, and all interested in the Sabbath-school work should attend.

The large card of Menken Brothers attracted a great deal of attention Sunday.

The very low prices caused comment among all classes, especially the ladies. As this firm is careful to advertise only such articles as is careful to advertise only such articles as are in store and can be sold for the prices mentioned, we find it necessary to refer to at least one item in their catalogue. By a mistake of the printer Sunday's paper gave the price of best unlaundried shirts at twenty-five cents, when it was written and should been printed, ninety-five cents. Several other mistakes occurred. The list has now been corrected, and articles mentioned therein can be found at prices given. Menken Brothers do not resort to any kind of humbug. When they desire to reduce particular kinds of goods they cut down prices and announce the fact in business-like advertisements in the APPEAL.

Scott Warr. Who Shoots Ell-Hobbed Him While He Slept of a Watch and Money.

Last evening W. Scott Warr, a resident of Rossville, Tennessee. shot Ella White, a boarder at Blanche Curry's bagnio, No. 189
Jefferson street, under the following circumstances: Warr has been infatuated with the girl for some time. A few months ago, when she was arrested on some charge and brought before the recorder, he appeared and pleaded her cause, cried over her misfortenes, paid her fine and left the court-room with his arm around her, swearing that he loved her better than he did his life. Since that time he has been visiting her regularly. Yesterday her fine and left the court-room with his arm around her, swearing that he loved her better than he did his life. Since that time he has been visiting her regularly. Yesterday he occupied her room at Blanche Curry's, and, on awakening from his sleep, discovered that he had been robbed of a gold watch and six hundred and forty dollars in money. He accused the girl, kills White, of the theft, which she denied. Then he drew his trusty pistol and shot at her. As he did so, she threw up her hands to protect her face. The ball passed between the open fingers of her hand, cutting them slightly, and, passing through her hair, was stopped by her back hair, where it was found. The powder burned her face badly, but the ball did no further damage. He and she were arrested and locked up in the stationhouse; he on the charge of shooting with intent to commit murder, and she on the charge of robbery. On her person was found the watch and money belonging to Warr. They will have a he aring before Recorder Porter this morning. fatally burned. Her legs, body and arms were burned almost to a crisp and medical attention was summoned. Dr. Frayser attended, but pronounced her case hopeless. She expressed a wish to see her betrothed ere she died, and the young man soon arrived. He remained with her until eight o'clock yesterday morning, when she breathed her last. Her grieved father, a resident of Poplast. Her grieved father, a resident of Pop-lar street, was also in attendance during her suffering and up to the hour of her death. She was aged about twenty years, was of Swiss parentage, born in New Orleans, and was highly respected by all who knew her. She was buried last evening from the resi-dence of her father, on Huppert avenue. When the oil can exploded the kitchen was set on fire, but was saved from destruction by Mr. Bruce and others.
